INVESTMENT OBJECTIVES

The Fund's primary investment objective is long-term capital appreciation and its secondary objective is income.

FEES AND EXPENSES

The following table describes the fees and expenses that you may pay if you buy and hold shares of the Fund.

Shareholder Fees (fees paid directly from your investment)	Adviser Class	Class C
Maximum Sales Charge (Load) Imposed on Purchases (as a percentage of offering price)	None	None
Maximum Deferred Sales Charge (Load) (as a percentage of the lesser of the original purchase price or the value of the shares upon redemption within one year of purchase)	None	1.00%
Maximum Sales Charge (Load) Imposed on Reinvested Dividends (as a percentage of offering price)	None	None
Redemption Fees	None¹	None¹
Annual Fund Operating Expenses (expenses that you pay each year as a percentage of the value of your investment)
Management Fees	1.00%	1.00%
Distribution and Service (12b-1) Fees	0.25%	1.00%
Other Expenses²	0.30%	0.30%
Total Annual Fund Operating Expenses	1.55%	2.30%

¹ The Transfer Agent charges a fee (currently $15) for each wire redemption and for redemption proceeds sent by overnight courier.

² Other Expenses include acquired fund fees and expenses, which were 0.01% of the Fund's average net assets. Without acquired fund fees and expenses, Total Annual Fund Operating Expenses would have been 1.54% and 2.29% for the Adviser Class shares and Class C shares, respectively.

EXPENSE EXAMPLE

The following examples are intended to help you compare the cost of investing in the Fund with the cost of investing in other mutual funds. The examples assume that you invest $10,000 in each class of the Fund for the time periods indicated and then redeem all of your shares at the end of each period, unless otherwise indicated. The examples also assume that you earn a 5% return each year and that the Fund's operating expenses remain the same. Although your actual costs may be higher or lower, based on these assumptions your costs would be:

Adviser Class	1 Year	3 Years	5 Years	10 Years
Class C (assuming sale of all shares at end of period)	$333	$718	$1,230	$2,636
Class C (assuming no sale of shares)	$233	$718	$1,230	$2,636

PORTFOLIO TURNOVER

The Fund pays transaction costs, such as commissions, when it buys and sells securities (or "turns over" its portfolio). A higher portfolio turnover rate may indicate higher transaction costs and may result in higher taxes when Fund shares are held in a taxable account. These costs, which are not reflected in annual fund operating expenses or in the expense example, affect the Fund's performance. During the most recent fiscal year, the Fund's portfolio turnover rate was 39.28% of the average value of its portfolio.

PRINCIPAL INVESTMENT STRATEGIES

The Fund seeks to achieve its objectives by investing primarily in a diversified portfolio of common stocks that the Fund's investment adviser, Olstein Capital Management, L.P. ("OCM"), believes are significantly undervalued. The stock selection process involves an accounting-driven, free cash flow-based, value-oriented approach that emphasizes looking behind the numbers of financial statements based on the belief that the price of a common stock may not reflect the intrinsic value of the issuing company's underlying business.

The stock selection process emphasizes assessing downside risk before considering upside potential, with a particular emphasis on the evaluation of a company's financial risk as determined by the strength and conservatism of its balance sheet, its ability to produce future excess free cash flow and the quality of its earnings.

When evaluating stocks for the Fund, OCM emphasizes an inferential analysis of financial statements as it seeks to identify early warning alerts (which may not be recognized by the investing public) of directional changes in a company's future ability to generate normalized free cash flow as well as its potential to grow. When assessing normalized free cash flow and the quality of earnings, OCM checks the accounting practices and assumptions utilized to construct financial statements against the economic reality of a company's business.

OCM believes stock prices often fall below a company's private market value as a result of a short-term focus on, or even an overreaction to, negative information regarding the company or its industry, or to just plain negative market psychology. The Fund seeks to capitalize on market volatility and the valuation extremes specific to a company by purchasing its stock at prices that OCM believes can result in above-average capital appreciation if the deviation between stock price and OCM's estimate of the company's private market value is corrected by market forces or other catalysts that change perceptions.

Although the Fund uses several valuation methods to determine private market value, all methods emphasize expected future free cash flow after capital expenditures and working capital needs under the assumption that intelligent use of cash flow can build meaningful shareholder value over time. The Fund's bottom-up analysis seeks to identify companies with unique business fundamentals and a competitive edge, which usually provide a greater predictability of free cash flow. Companies with free cash flow have the potential to enhance shareholder value by increasing dividends, repurchasing shares, reducing debt, engaging in strategic acquisitions, withstanding an economic downturn without adopting harmful short term strategies or being an attractive acquisition target.

The Fund will invest in companies without regard to whether they are conventionally categorized as small, medium, or large capitalization or whether they are characterized as growth (growth is a component of the Fund's definition of value), value, cyclical, or any other category. The Fund may invest up to 20% of its net assets in foreign securities, but the Fund's foreign investments will be limited to investments in developed countries, rather than countries with developing or emerging markets.

MAIN RISKS

There can be no assurance that the Fund will achieve its objectives. Each of the risks listed below has the potential (individually or in any combination) to affect adversely the net asset value of the Fund and cause you to lose money.

Stock Market Risk: The Fund is subject to the risk that stock prices may decline over short or even extended periods of time.

Management Risk: The investment techniques used by OCM may not produce the desired results and cause the Fund to underperform its benchmarks or mutual fund peers.

Value Investing Style Risk: The Fund uses a value-oriented investment approach. However, a particular value stock may not increase in price as anticipated by OCM (and may actually decline in price) if other investors fail to recognize the stock's value or if a catalyst that OCM believes will increase the price of the stock does not occur or does not affect the price of the stock in the manner or to the degree anticipated.

Portfolio Turnover: OCM's "buy and sell" discipline may result in a portfolio turnover rate higher than that of many funds with similar investment strategies. High portfolio turnover involves additional transaction costs (such as brokerage commissions), which are borne by the Fund, and might involve adverse tax effects.

Foreign Investing: Investing in foreign companies typically involves more risks than investing in U.S. companies. These risks can increase the potential for losses in the Fund and may include risks related to currency exchange rate fluctuations, country or government specific issues (for example, terrorism, war, social and economic instability, currency devaluations, and restrictions on foreign investment or the movement of assets), unfavorable trading practices, less government supervision, less publicly available information, limited trading markets and greater volatility.
